Rear Admiral Insist That Mexican Apologize and Salute American Flag as Well-Villa Pulls His Army Out of Hole.

Madrid, Spain, April 13 .- The Spanish foreign minister asked Colonel Joseph E. Willard, United States ambassador to Spain, to request the government at Washington to intervene in favor of the 1,000 Spanish subjects expelled from Torreon.

Washington, April 13.-Rear Admiral Mayo, commander of the American squadron at Tampico, has demanded of General Zaragoza, the Mexican federal commander at that port, an immediate apology and salute to the American flag because the federals arrested a party of American marines and paraded them through the streets of Tampico.

"Secretary of the Navy Daniels made this announcement, but said that he had no information as to whether the apology has been made. Admiral Fletcher Gives Details.

A lengthy dispatch was received from Rear Admiral Fletcher reporting the Mayo demand, Secretary Daniels stated, but it was not made public because Mr. Daniels thought it proper that the president should see it before it was published. Secretary Daniels declined to give out the text

"Rear Admiral Mayo reported through Rear Admiral Fletcher that a landing party of American marines had been arrested without cause and had been publicly marched through a portion of Tampico. He also reported that he had demanded an apology and a salute to the American flag to be given within 24 hours. We have not heard anything since this first dispatch and therefore we do not know whether the apology was made. It may be that because President Huerta issued a practical apology at Mexico City, Admiral Mayo considers it best to let the matter rest for the present."

Secretary Bryan's Statement. The following statement covering the arrest and detention of American marines in Tampico was issued by Secretary Bryan:

"Acting upon instructions from the state department, the American charge in Mexico City representing to the Mexican foreign office the extreme seriousness of the situation growing out of the detention of United States marines by Mexican federals at Tampico. A personal explanation of the gravity of the occurrence was made by Mr. O'Shaughnessy to General Huerta himself, who stated that in view of the fact that the charge d'affaires of the United States had heard that the whaleboat in which the American sailors were was flying the American flag, an investigation will be made to establish the responsibility of Colonel Hinojosa, and that if the investigation should develop a greater responsibility on the part of Colonel Hinojoss the penalty applicable to the case will be imposed by the competent legal authorities.

Huerta Regrets Incident. "General Huerta also stated that in accord with the line of conduct which the government of Mexico had always followed, in the fulfillment of its duties of an international character regarding all nations, it deplored what had occurred in this case, which a misunderstanding of a subordinate official. His superior officer at once St. Petersburg Convicts Assault Deproceeded to point out that the occurrence was unintentional and that he had imposed upon Colonel Hinojoss the disciplinary punishment within the

The business of transportation requires that more than ordinary precaution should be taken to safeguard operation from accidents, and while in all railroad operation the safety of passengers is the first consideration. the problems presented in protecting employes in many respects are identical, and in safeguarding the latter the safety of the public is also largely secured. It is really not a question of safeguard, but more of intelligent caution constantly exercised.

The aim of the "safety first" movement is to teach each employe a sense of personal responsibility not altogether for his own safety but also for the safety of his fellow employes. It teaches every man in the service so to safeguard the operation of the railroad that he works for that accidents of every kind shall be as few as human foresight can make them.

Workmen themselves are in a large part to blame for the many accidents when they do not exercise the care dents. They should be taught to avoid carelessness at all hazards.

Too many men in railroad service care nothing for the public's interest think of is the least work, no matter how it is done. It is this class of men who are responsible for the awful statistics which show that one railroad employe out of every thirteen well worked into the soil. According to the committee, the construction of wooden passenger equipment practically has ceased, and it a watchword among their employes? rapid strides are being made toward fully equipping railways with either steel or steel underframe cars.

Reports received by the committee from 247 companies operating 227,754 miles of track, disclose that between January 1 and July 1 of the present year orders were placed for 1,140 passenger equipment vehicles, including postal, mail, baggage, passenger, express, parlor, sleeping, dining and usiness cars, says the Railway Reporter and Traveler's News. Specifications for 1,064, or 93.3 per cent., of these cars provide for all steel construction, while the remaining cars have steel underframes.

A table prepared by the committee shows that of 1,880 passenger equipment vehicles acquired in 1909 by the rail lines, 26 per cent, were built of steel, 22.6 per cent. had steel underframes and 51.4 per cent. were constructed of wood.

In 1912 the railroads purchased 2,660 cars for passenger service, and of the total 68.7 per cent. were of steel and only 10.4 per cent. of wood A comparison of the number of steel passenger equipment cars in use January 1, 1910, and January 1, 1913, shows that there was an increase during that period of 1.055 per cent.

BIG FACTOR IN HAILROADING

Effective Work That Has Been Done by the Master Car Builders' Association.

That every railroad does not live unto itself alone is due in a large measure to the work of the Master Car Builders' association. One could hardly imagine the chaotic condition in which we would find railroading had there been no association to do what has been done by the master car build-

MEANS OUTLAY OF MILLIONS READING TEST SURE

IMMIGRATION BILL CONTAINING LITERACY CLAUSE CERTAIN TO BECOME LAW.

PRESIDENT WILL SIGN IT

Although Personally Opposed to the Clause, the Executive Will Pay Heed to the Wishes of Congress.

By GEORGE CLINTON. Washington.-Some weeks ago it was said in these dispatches that before many months had elapsed adult aliens seeking admission to the United States would be tested as to their ability to read. This was written with full knowledge that President Wilson would prefer that the literacy test should be excluded from the law. Members of congress who seemingly are in a position to know Mr. Wilson's mind on the subject now seem to have no doubt that the measure will get his signature. It is virtually certain that neither senate nor house will insist that the literacy clause be excluded from the pending legislation. Senators and representatives who oppose the literacy test as a part of the immigration bill still believe that because of its presence in the measure President Wilson will interpose his veto. The friends of the test clause in congress, however, are insistent in their belief that the measure will get the president's signature.

This division of opinion with friend on one side and foe on the other makes it appear that the wish is father to the thought in each case. Perhaps it is, but the accumulating evidence is that while the president personally is opposed to submitting aliens to the reading test, he will sign the bill with the objectionable clause included.

Ask Reading Test.

The legislatures of Ohio, Tennessee, Virginia and Vermont and of several other states have adopted resolutions asking congress to impose a reading test on adult aliens seeking admission to this country. The great labor organizations, the largest organizations of farmers both of the North and South, and other organizations all over the country have been petitioning the lawmakers for years to put the "reading test" on the statute books. It looks today as if it were to be given a place there.

It is said in Washington that Presiwishes of congress and especially to a report made by the commission which spent four years investigating and studying in this country and in Europe the whole immigration subject. The report of the commission was made to congress some time ago. The majority of the commission favored not only a writing test as "the most feasible single method of restricting undesirable immigration." Strong feeling, bitter feeling, in fact. is expressed by some members of congress against the reading test. The basic argument of opponents of the literacy clause is that this country will be untrue to its traditions and to the spirit in which the republic was founded if it shall refuse admittance to men and women otherwise fit for citizenship simply because they cannot read. These opponents of the literacy test say that economic considerations ought not to weigh against an effort to maintain a true democracy. Other representatives and senators feel that the influx of the ignorant is lowering the standard of life and the standard of character of American workmen and they use the report of the commission to bulwark their arguments. Here is a paragraph from the commission's report which is quoted freely and which was used in the first attempt to bring President Wilson into sympathy with the movement for a literacy test:

Monopolize Unskilled Labor. "It is certain that southern and eastern European immigrants have almost completely monopolized unskilled labor activities in many of the more important industries. This phase of the industrial situation was made the most important and exhaustive feature of the commission's investigation, and the results show that while the competition of these immigrants has had little, if any, effect on the highly skilled trades, nevertheless, through lack of industrial progress and by reason of large and constant reinforcement from abroad, it has kept conditions in the semi-skilled and unskilled occupations from advancing."

The commission which studied the immigration question was appointed at the instance of the opponents of the literacy test. The report which the members turned in of course was a bitter disappointment to the men who were instrumental in securing the commission's appointment. They probably had expected a different kind of result. President Wilson, if he signs the bill, as appearances indicate that he will, probably will be moved to forego his own inclinations largely because of the findings made by a commission of men who, it is said, went to their work single-heartedly and with no view except that of discovering the facts. If the bill passes in its present form

INTERNATIONAL

LESSON FOR APRIL 19.

COST OF DISCIPLESHIP.

LESSON TEXT-Luke 14:25-35. GOLDEN TEXT— Whosoever would save his life shall lose it; and whosoever shall lose his life for my sake shall find it." Matt. 16:25.

While this discourse is recorded only by St. Luke, still there are many things mentioned here to which our Lord made reference on other occasions. Last Sunday's Easter lesson made a break in the sequence of lessons we have been following, and shall follow for several succeeding Sundays. Leaving the chief Pharisee's house wherein he criticized both host and guests, "great multituder" followed our Lord. Turning, he uttered some of the severest and yet the most wonlips, as we shall see if we follow all of this part of our lesson series. Multitude Rebuked.

I. A Caution, v. 26. On another occasion, John 6:26, Jesus rebuked the multitude which followed him. This multitude who pressed about him did not realize what was involved in a true following. They were influenced by the psychology of the crowd, and did not count the cost. Jesus does not mean that our discipleship will lessen our love for our kin (Eph. 5:25, 28-31; 6:1-4), but as compared with our love for him it is aversion. See Matt. 10:37; Phil. 3:7, 8; Ps. 73:25, 26. Avertold us that those who shall turn aside thus shall have an abundant reward, see Mark 10:28-30. Jesus Christ must be supreme in a Christain's affections. He who freely gave his own self (John 3:16, Phil. 2:8) has a right to demand a like devotion to himself, and as a foundation for various kinds of men have approached nearest to such soups. a consecration he has exalted them. in the pathway of loyalty and devo- needs in cooking. tion to him. Homely Illustrations.

have already indicated the conclusion towards which Jesus was leading with terrific logic, and by looking back to T. the first verse of the lesson we see what it was he was seeking to impress upon the minds of the thoughtless multitude. Again the Master uses one of those homely illustrations gathered from the common experiences of life which he employed so frequently to amplify or to drive home a great truth. There must be quality as well as devotion to this discipleship. Salt preserves from corruption, seasons insipidity, freshens and sweetens. These qualities are referred to abundantly by Scriptural writers. Salt is highly prized in the East. The natural man is presented also as be 134 2d St., Richmond, Ky. ing corrupt, Gen. 6:11; 8:21; Ps. 14:2, 3; Eph. 2:1-3. The remedy for this is the active presence of his disciples among their fellows. The true disthe active presence of his disciples ciple is like salt with a good savor. On the other hand, salt that has lost its savor is not even fit for a dunghill, but is thrown out and trodden under foot of men. So our Lord sets aside that disciple of his who has lost bis usefulness. This expresses our By Coffey Bros his usefulness. This expresses our Lord's contempt and scorn of those who lack, not merely a certain kind of character, but those whose profession and appearance would indicate a better expectation.

This lesson presents the severity of the claims of Jesus. Irresistibly he drew the multitudes to himself. Witness the crowd following him as he leaves the house of the ruler. But he paused and by his teaching sifted them, and seemingly made it difficult For 25 Cents to follow him.

What is the purpose of discipleship? It means co-operation. The work of the King is to build and to battle, so the disciple must wield both sword and trowel. He must set aside his interests and devote himself and all of his strength to the work and the warfare. We must not, as has been intimated, allow ourselves to imagine that these sayings of Jesus conflict with his tender words about the home or of men coming to him for rest Try the Cosby House (Matt. 11:28-30). The ultimate end of discipleships is that the surging restessness of the multitude shall indeed find rest in him.

AILURE is often the nce that swings us to a higher level. Life is not really what comes to us, but what we get out of it. LET NOTHING BE LOST.

In the miracle which is recorded in the Gospels, the fact that after the feast there were gathered up 12 basketfuls, and they were told to do this that nothing be lost, is a lesson for us in economy. Even the Creator of all things in his wonderful providence to us expects us to use our blessings with care against needless waste.

Many people fail in economy because they do not know how to save, and, of course, there are those who are "penny wise and pound foolish." Food is not the only article of importance in the great make-up of every woman. The Waste of Food .- A stock pot for soups is a wonderful saver and will prove a great help in planning the day's menu. The water in which rice or macaroni and any bits of leftover meat and bones can be cooked together until a jelly is formed. The inch or two of steak, the half cup of peas, the tablespoonful or two of sion is to turn aside, and the Master string beans, in fact almost any kind of food may go into the soup pot with good results. One of the features that public opinion is coming more and more to require is that suburban dwellings should be as nearly fireproof or fireresisting as possible. Fire protection in small towns and suburban localities is very seldom all that it should be. Common business sense directs that in such locations extra precautions should be taken, especially for residences, to make them as nearly fireproof as possible. This carries with it the obligation to build substantially and well, at the same time using as artistic a design as may be, so that the building which is to last for three or four generations will throughout all that time be a source of pride to the owner and an improvement to the advantage without waste of time and neighborhood.

BEST PAYING PULLETS

OPPORTUNITY OVERLOOKED FOR EARNING NEEDED CASH.

Average Farm Hen Producing an Average of Eighty Eggs Annually Returns No Profit - Three Most Important Points.

(By A. F. HUNTER, a Veteran Poultry Raiser.)

(Copyright, 1914.)
Poultry rightly handled is the best paying live stock a farmer can keep, with the added advantage of a comparatively small investment in buildings and of both quick and constant cash returns. This is not true, however, of the average farm flocks, which produce no eggs in the fall and early winter and average, according to the last census, less than eighty eggs each in a year. Hens so kept pay no profit whatever if the cost of their food is considered.

It is pullets that produce an average of 150 eggs each in a year and produce a fair proportion of those eggs in late fall and winter, the season of highest prices and best profits, that are the money makers. It is remarkable that the farmers who would be most advantaged by a steady cash return from a flock of good hens are the most neglectful of this opportunity.

Good pullets which will produce an average of 150 eggs each and pay their owner a net profit of $2 each in a year are not the common scrub hens of the farms; they are thoroughbred pullets, bred and reared for egg production, and so reared that they attain laying maturity in the first half of October. To the farmers who are used to getting no eggs in the fall and early winter this will seem an impossibility, but the thousands of farmers who are easily accomplishing it prove the fact.

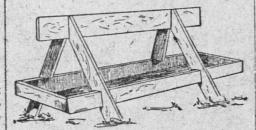

To accomplish this the three chief points are to have the chicks hatched the first half of April, to keep the pullets steadily growing so that they reach laying maturity the first half of October and then that they be kept steadily laying by good care and good food. Six months is the normal time of growth of a healthy pullet. Six months forward from the first half of April is the first half of October, and the "rightly handled" pullets will be fully mature and laying before cold weather comes upon them. The chicks hatched one or two months later are checked in growth by the strong heat of summer and are about half mature when the cold of com will be found to fulfill all these con- features of arrangement. Three fine takes them. Such pullets lay the bulk ditions and to recommend itself as rooms are provided on the first floor, of their eggs during the months of being at once dignified and attractive besides the large porch and entrance lowest prices and pay little or no convenient arrangement of dining demand for fresh laid eggs increases more rapidly than the supply there is always room for others.

Practice Generally Results First in Increased Egg Production, Then Fowls Are Affected.

While we do not advocate the use of wet mashes in poultry feeding we believe that too often dry feed is fed too heavily and too continuously to produce the best results; in fact, there is no doubt that a great deal of dry grain first evenly graded and then plowed is fed for a considerable period, the as deeply as practical. Furrows about birds often become seriously affected. four feet apart are then dug across Some of the symptoms of continued the road and extended beyond the part dry feeding are: Weak neck; often birds appear to be paralyzed, losing the use of their legs; they become sleepy, and seem to lack strength to which the firing is started. low. Dry feeding generally results first in increased egg-production, .the birds appear to be in fine health and it is only after this kind of feed has been continued for a long time, that the bad results appear.

It is a fact, therefore, that if birds seem to thrive at first on dry feeding, it is not to be taken as indisputable "I put them there myself," he said. evidence that they are thriving and can do without green food.

It is much more important to supply the birds plenty of green food along "scarecrows" with the idea of fright- with dry grains and meat scraps, than when wet mashes are fed.

USE BURNED CLAY ON ROADS

Sticky or Plastic Qualities Are Destroyed and Bears Traffic in Wettest Kind of Weather.

(By OLIVER BENNOCK, Colorado Agricultural College.) In some sections of the country the only material available from which roads can be constructed is clay. In such localities traffic is almost entirely impossible during the wet seasons, as the wheels of the heavy vehicles will sink to the hub.

In order to correct this condition, the United States office of public roads made the experiment of burning the clay. It was found that by burning the clay, even at a moderate heat, its

GOOD ROADS AID SANITATION

If All Highways Were Improved There Would Be Appreciable Betterment of Public Health.

Friends of good roads should add to their usual arguments one which is portant-namely, that good roads are direct aids to sanitation. Weeds and other rank vegetable growths are prolific breeders of flies, mosquitoes and other disease-carrying insects. Sound road building causes the removal of weeds and similar trash. Weed and brush undergrowths by the roadside invite deposit of garbage and offal. Good roads do away with these disease-breeding agencies.

Good roads also prevent disease by providing good drainage. Many farms have no drainage except by ditches along the side of the road. Open ditches, clear of brush and debris, of hard surface and proper fall afford farms an opportunity to rid themselves of stagnant pools.

Oiling of roads destroys insect larvae. Dry, hard roads also enable pedestrians, especially the thousands of school children who, in country localities, walk quite a distance to and from school, to keep their shoes and stockings dry, thus preventing colds, and their frequent consequences, pneumonia and tuberculosis. Logical tracing of effects to causes leaves no ground for doubt that if all the roads in the United States were betterment of the public health.

Personally, I believe the best way to handle fillers is to plant the same type of fruit, as peaches with peaches, apples with apples. Dwarf pears are becoming popular as fillers and can often be used in apple orchards. The trouble is the average man is not provided with sufficient nerve to cut out trees when they begin to crowd, and as a result he allows the crowding of trees to continue until the orchard is often ruined .- C. > By GEORGE CLINTON. Washington.-There has just been formed in Washington a committee of husiness men and influential citizens whose duty will be to arouse throughout the entire United States an interest in the "well being of the capital of the country." This committee owes its origin to the recent attempt in congress to change the whole system of taxation of the district by making the residents of Washington pay all the taxes, the government to pay absolutely nothing for the upkeep of the streets, the sewers, the police and the fire department and other necessities of a city government.

As things are at present, the taxes are divided half and half, that is, the residents of Washington pay half the amount necessary to run things and congress appropriates for the other half. Of course it was not intended by congress that the city of Washington should pay for the erection of public buildings or for their maintenance, or for anything which was used or intended to be used for purely governmental functions. It is maintained, however, that it is now the intention to make the residents of the district pay for the paving and for the maintenance of the streets and alleys upon which government property abuts.

The senate has positively declined to stand for the drastic change of the system of taxation proposed by the house of representatives. The resi-Advent of Steel Sleeping Cars Throws dents of Washington say that this city being the capital, congress should do its share in keeping the place beautiful and in making it a credit to the An apt illustration of reduction in people of the United States. There seems to be no chance that for some time at any rate the senate of the United States will agree to the house demand that the old system of half and half taxation shall be done away with and that the residents of Washington shall pay the whole bill, but now that the matter has once been before congress, it is likely to come up again at different times and so it is that the people who live here want the country to come to their rescue through representations to senators and representatives that the capital of the country should be kept beautiful and that it is only right the government should pay a part of the reckoning.

Beautifying Is Systematic. As the country pretty generally knows by this time, the haphazard method of beautifying Washington has been stopped. There is now a Gas Pipes are being made in France fine arts commission which passes judgment on all proposed improve-

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I—John Valiant, a rich seciety favorite, suddenly discovers that the Valiant corporation, which his father founded and which was the principal source of his wealth, has failed.

CHAPTER II-He voluntarily turns over his private fortune to the receiver for the corporation.

CHAPTER III—His entire remaining possessions consist of an old motor car, a white bull dog and Damory court, a neglected estate in Virginia.

CHAPTER IV-He learns that this estate came into the family by royal grant and has been in the possession of the CHAPTER V—On the way to Damory court he meets Shirley Dandridge, an auburn-haired beauty, and decides that he is going to like Virginia immensely.

CHAPTER VI—An old negro tells Shir-ley's fortune and predicts great trouble for her on account of a man. CHAPTER VII—Uncle Jefferson, an old negro, takes Valiant to Damory court.

CHAPTER VIII—Shirley's mother, Mrs. Dandridge, and Major Bristow exchange reminiscences during which it is revealed that the major, Valiant's father, and a man named Sassoon, were rivals for the hand of Mrs. Dandridge in her youth. Sassoon and Valiant fought a duel on her second in which the former was killed. account in which the former was killed.

CHAPTER IX-Valiant finds Damory court overgrown with weeds and creepers and the buildings in a very much neglected condition. Uncle Jefferson and his wife, Aunt Daphne, are engaged as

He carefully relocked the door meditatively watching a bucaneering of this room; he wanted to dust those chicken-hawk draw widening circles against the blue and listening to the vibrant tattoo of a "pecker-wood" on a far-away tree, and the timorous wet whistle of a bob-white. The whole place was very quiet now. For just one thrilling moment it had burgeoned into sound and movement: when the sweaty horses had stood snorting and stamping in the yard with the hounds scampering between their legs and the riding-coats winking like rubies in the

But she didn't give me away, true little sport that a slouch hat, and whistling the barshe was. And she won't. I can't think of any reason, but I know. Was she angry? I wonder!"

At length he rose and went back to the house. With a bunch of keys he had found he went to the stables, after some difficulty gained access, and propped the crazy doors and windows open to the sun. The building was airy and well-lighted and contained a dozen roomy box-stalls, a spacious loft and a carriage-house. The straw bedding had been unremoved, mice-gnawed sacking and rotted hay lay in the mangers, and the warped harness, hanging on its pegs, was a smelly mass of mildew and decay. He found a stick, mowed away the festooning cobwebs, and moved the debris piece-meal.

"There!" he said with satisfaction. "There's a place for the motor-if Uncle Jefferson ever gets it here."

"Why don't you hunt?" "I don't enjoy it." He flushed slightly. "I hate firearms," he said, a trifle difficultly. "I always have. I don't know why. Idiosyncrasy, I suppose. But I shouldn't care for hunting, even with bows and arrows. I would kill a tiger or a poisonous reptile, or anything else, in case of necessity. But even then I should hardly enjoy it. The Evangel of Easter

fact of Easter: for without the resurrection of the dead there is no evangel for the minister to preach and no gospel to save those who might believe no salvation from sin, no sun to drive away darkness and despair, no hope of heaven. Paul lays great emphasis upon these vital things in I Corinthians 15:12-19. It is significant that after his resur- late home for his wife and children .rection, Jesus appeared only to his disciples; and of these, first to those who needed him most. There is deep meaning in the very order of the recorded appearances after his resurrection. First, to Mary, probably the most heart-broken of all the little band; then to Peter, who had denied him, and since then had been weeping bitter tears of repentance; then to the two sad and weary ones on the way to Emmaus who were saying, "We trusted it had been he who should have redeemed Israel."

On the Emmaus Road. Let us consider this story of the first Easter Sunday evening. There is a peculiar charm in it, and the very simplicity wins our hearts. He found a ready market for his produce, and I thought how happy his little ones would be when he returned home in the evening with toys, and dresses, and shoes, and food for the morrow, and some clear money in his purse. I thought I could see his wife standing in the doorway to give him a cordial greeting on his return, so desirous was I that he should make the home ones happy and contented. I could almost see his cheerful face as he returned to his family after a day's absence. So I thought, and returned to my work. But evening came, and he passed by my window again. He Jesus Christ from had nothing I thought he would have. The bed of the wagon was bare. No little shoes, nor food for the morrow, nor money in his purse, I dare say. The man was drunk. He had changed, and this changed my thoughts of his home. I could see the children shrinking from his approach, and the wife, so care-worn and sorrowful. GOV. MCCREARY DELIBERATE IN MAKING SELECTION OF MEM-BERS TEXT BOOK BOARD.

WILL LET $5,000,000 AWARD

To Supply Text Books for the Common Schools of Kentucky for the Ensuing Five Years-Twelve Men to Constitute Board.

(Special Frankfort Correspondence.) Frankfort, Ky.-Gov. McCreary is taking his time about the appointment of the commission which is to let the $5,000,000 contract to supply text books for the common schools of Kentucky for the ensuing five years. The present contract with the American Book Co. will expire next July, and the governor is considering a list of eligibles for appointment to the commission. One of the serious problems connected with the selection of men is to keep off the commission any one who might be prejudiced in favor of any bidder. The commission is to be composed of the governor and state superintendent of public instruction. Barksdale Hamlett, a representative from the state university, and each of the two normal schools, and a man from each of the seven appellate districts active ly engaged in educational work.

County Superintendents L. D. John Sharp Williams Attacks Costly "Craze" for Inquiries and May Have Been Spokesman for the Administration.

By GEORGE CLINTON.

Washington.-While the activities of the lobby investigating committee have been more or less criticized, it seems that they have produced results. Some few officials in Washington continue to maintain, however, that the lobby investigation was not worth while. Some of them seem to think it will prevent law abiding citizens, simply through fear that they may be called corruptionists, from coming to Washington to plead for or against legislation in which they feel natural interest.

So far as can be learned, there seems to be nothing to this line of reasoning. The men who have honest reasons to enter objection against proposed legislation or to plead for it, seem to be just as willing to come true, however, that the men who is true, however, that the men who is bied for pay and who used methods bied for pay and who used methods altegether commendable are no altegether commendable are no to the capital as ever they were. It is the capitol seem to be clean.

It seems to be true, therefore, that the lobby investigating committee has done a good work and has produced a condition which a good many men would like to have seen produced years ago. The question is sharp in Washington, however, whether the majority of the inquiring activities of senate and house within the last three or four years have been worth the or four years have been worth the time and energy expended. Some of the critics have called the series of inquiries "government by investigation." Has it paid?

Williams Calls It a Craze.

Senator John Sharp Williams, Democrat of Mississippi, is saying sharp things about what he seems to think is an investigating craze. Mr. Williams says it has cost a lot of money and he apparently feels that the results have not been commensurate with the cost. In three years about $180,000 have been spent in inelectrocuted in the following order: vestigating along various lines and "Gyp the Blood," "Lefty Louie," there are men of all political shades not been as fruitful as it might have been. Others, however, declare that no money spent in investigating subjects to which suspicion attaches can be wasted.

Now there are investigations and investigations. Some of the inquiries are forced by the very nature of things, as for instance inquiries into are rightly entitled to their seats.

There are other kinds of investigations, however, which seem to spring solely from the desire of some senator or representative, who thinks that he has "scented a trail," to obtain a place in the limelight for himself which shall be held as long as the investigation is in progress. Whether he is to stay in the limelight or not always depends upon the outcome of the investigation. If it fails to produce results he is likely to be overshadowed for the rest of his term, but if it proves to be a public benefit the name of the investigation instigating member is likely to remain fixed in public attention. Spokesman for President?

There are some Democrats, Republicans and Progressives in house and senate who are urging that investigabers of the party which took Spurgeon case can be made in advance that strong evidence of an evil exists and hustled him away to the spot on the that there is a real intention to root is not in entire sympathy with all the investigating activities of his party in house and senate. It is barely possible that Senator Williams, unbeknown 'to his colleagues, has been the spokesman of that a large percentage of the great sums spent for inquiry purposes have been used to little avail. Mr. Williams apparently wants his colleagues to remember that economy is the Demo-
